Monthly fund review

Investment objective

The Fund will attempt to achieve over the long term a total return in excess of that of the MSCI Emerging Markets Index (with net dividends reinvested) through investment in a concentrated portfolio of equities of companies from emerging markets and from other markets where it can be demonstrated by the Investment Manager that the company concerned is overwhelmingly an emerging market related company. The approach is focussed on valuations and bottom-up fundamental research of individual companies.

The value of all investments and the income from them can go down as well as up; this may be due, in part, to exchange rate fluctuations. Past performance is not a guide to future performance.

Fund manager commentary

A difficult month for emerging market equities. Volatility remains high, which should throw out some interesting opportunities over the summer months. We have been holding a higher than usual cash balance for this reason. Sentiment remains difficult with a heady mix of US monetary policy tightening, Chinese growth question marks, inflationary pressures and supply chain disruptions. Valuations are looking attractive as the negative sentiment gets priced in. The upside potential for the portfolio is 68% as measured by the weighted average of the company price targets.

Exposure to natural resources, materials, and solid franchise stocks have helped mitigate inflationary pressures. The ability to benefit from price increases or be able to pass on inflationary pressures is important currently. This often comes from strong market positions and cost-plus relationships with customers. Inflation has been a consistent backdrop in emerging markets, and we believe that the majority of our companies are well positioned to cope with and benefit from inflationary pressures.

The bottom performers by contribution for the month were Infosys and Embraer. Infosys (Indian IT services) had mildly disappointing quarterly results with lower margin guidance for the year. Wages and costs such as travel will increase going forward. Although the revenue growth rate has slowed it is still far higher than pre-Covid, and still benefiting from the structural move to digital services. Embraer (Brazilian aircraft manufacturer) is about to see the listing of its electric flight vehicle (EVE) on the New York Stock Exchange. EVE is a short range electric vertical takeoff & landing 'flying taxi' seating five people that will aim to replace helicopters and some taxi routes primarily in urban settings. Speed, noise, and operating costs being some of the advantages.

The top performers by contribution for the month were Indofood and First Pacific. Indofood (Indonesian snack food producer) is a good example of a company able to pass on inflationary pressures. It holds a 70% market share position in the Indonesian noodle market, which is effectively a duopoly. Noodles are a cheap staple fast food eaten 'on the go' and so busy consumers are less price sensitive and frequent flavour changes maintain consumer interest. In addition, Indofood owns the largest producer and importer of flour in the country that works on a cost-plus basis mitigating the increase in global wheat prices. First Pacific (Hong Kong listed holding company) has most of its underlying investments in the Philippines and Indonesia.

Commentary - continued

The head office is in Hong Kong. Key holdings are PLDT (telecom operator in the Philippines), Indofood (Indonesian snack foods), and MPIC (Utilities in the Philippines) – these account for around 95% of its net asset value. These are all significant, listed, and liquid businesses that are performing well and First Pacific has strong relationships with. First Pacific trades on just shy of a 60% discount to its net asset value.

Russian holdings

Please note that as of 3rd March 2022 the holding of Lukoil ADR will have a fair value price (FVP) of zero. This has been determined by our Valuation Committee. Lukoil ADR listed on the London Stock Exchange (LSE) was suspended from trading by the exchange on the morning 3rd March 2022. We will continue to monitor the situation daily and update accordingly.
